

Grand jury's Nameoki probe may expand into sewer project

By NANCY WEIL
of the Press-Record

A Madison County grand jury investigating into Nameoki Township's expenditures with items other than land previously been indicated and includes a probe into township funds used to purchase items that were not represented properly on invoices, the Press-Record has learned. The probe also appears to be expanding into the installation of sanitary sewers through the township, it was indicated.

The township investigation does not involve "one large fraud scheme, but rather a series of smaller transactions involving funds and materials," a source close to the investigation said.

It was indicated that about $10,000 would be an accurate figure of the total monies known to be involved so far.

Since the start of the investigation concerns alleged improprieties involving sewers and streets within the township. Investigation into the matters involving the sewers could become "hot," an official source said.

It was confirmed that the Illinois State Auditor's office of Comptroller among various offices, businesses and officials is not yet known, the investigation presently centers on two elected officials in the township, the Press-Record has learned.

Reports that the investigation includes the possible misuse of federal Community Development funds are ac-cute, but involve less than $1,000, it was indicated.

That items of the investigation concern items that were purchased and then not used for their intended purpose, a source said. Indications are that some items might be in the possession of a township official.

It was confirmed that the Illinois State Auditor's office of Comptroller investigation was involved in the probe for at least a month prior to the grand jury hearing on March 17, at which some township employees testified.

About 10 employees have been subpoenaed to either produce records or appear before the grand jury. Two employees were subpoenaed Wednesday to produce records and were told they would have to appear before the grand jury on April 12, a date not yet established. The records date back to 1980 and include documentation of Community Development expenditures, the source said.

Both employees work with the processing of bills for payment, including bills from the township highway office.

An employee said that the records will be given to investigators and added, "we have nothing to hide."

A Delage, reportedly told employees that records were being subpoenaed to obtain an "overall picture" of how the township operates.

Although it was speculated that the grand jury will include the township investigation in its March 31 session, a source said that the probe probably will be continued April 17.

When the grand jury investigation was made public, early speculation was that the primary concern involved the alleged "pillaging of gasoline" by township employees, a source said. While a source said that aspect of the investigation is pending, it was suggested that the matter would not have been pursued to its present extent or depth if that investigation had not uncovered other suspicious township activities.

Mehelic uses his own vehicle for work-related purposes. Some township employees have alleged that Mehelic told them to round off figures when gasoline from township pumps was placed in vehicles.

Although Mehelic contends that he told an employee to round off his gasoline use to 20 gallons when he took 18 or 19 gallons, the employee has testified to the contrary, suggesting that the highway commissioner lied.

Part-time dogcatcher Thomas Boushard cited an example of using 11 gallons of gasoline and alleged Mehelic recorded 25 gallons.

Mehelic has repeatedly said that everything he did was for the benefit of

Stix trials opening

Believing he was led astray in the financial world by his brother-in-law, Arthur J. Miller Jr., 35, of Granite City, is prepared to testify against his relative and other defendants in the looting of Stix & Co. stock brokerage accounts.

Miller is the brother of Janice Brimberry, wife of Thomas R. Brimberry, senior vice president in charge of Stix operations at the time the brokerage was put out of business in November 1981.

Guilt pleas have been submitted by Miller and Jerry Maeras. Leonard Bedford has been convicted and sentenced to five years in prison; he is free while awaiting the verdict.

Brimberry is to go on trial May 9 for allegedly obstructing justice after agreeing to cooperate with federal prosecutors.)

The other two alleged central figures, James Massa, an attorney from Collinsville, and Duane Skinner, an accountant from Crystal Beach, are to go on trial this week in St. Louis.

Massa's rise to majority ownership of Stix & Co. coincided with the ascendancy of Brimberry from a clerical position.

With Brimberry no longer being shielded from a number of charges, Miller and Maeras have emerged as the primary witnesses for the government.

Some funds from Stix went for expenses incurred by Miller Excavating, a company said to have been controlled by Brimberry.

Prosecutors assert that, at the time the brokerage collapsed, Miller's account owed Stix $3.4 million — of $5.6 million in securities left as collateral, $1.2 million of the securities were phony.

Miller is quoted as telling of "laundering" funds through a bank account and Las Vegas casinos to enrich himself and Brimberry.

The site manager and rental agent of The Town and Country Apartment complex on Parkview Drive wants to "squash the rumors" surrounding the 121-unit project, including fears that the federally subsidized housing will be occupied by unsavory tenants and even-

But David Annis said he has had problems clearing the complex of the rumors. Tuesday, he said, he was "impatiently told to leave" the Granite City Township Building when he went there to talk to several citizens about the complex, which includes 80 apartments (Continued on Page 7)

Area welcomes TRRA office

By GARY SCHNEIDER
Press-Record Editor

"The community, county and state have one fine new corporate citizen...we look forward to a long and successful future together," Illinois Secretary of Transportation John Kramer stated at a luncheon Thursday to welcome the Terminal Railroad Association to its new headquarters in Granite City.

During the event at Charlie's Restaurant, officials of the state, the Cities Area Chamber of Commerce and the association introduced the railroad and its top officials to the city. The company has moved its corporate headquarters into the former A&P Food Store in the 2000 block of Madison Avenue.

In the 14,000-square-foot building, the company has located its engineering, computer systems, police department and office staff. The staff headquartered here totals about 81 persons, according to L. J. "Jeff" King, TRRA president.

A tour of the headquarters followed the luncheon.

Kramer cited a long relationship with King, saying, "Illinois is the rail hub of the nation and of all the railroads in Illinois, none is run as fine as Terminal Railroad."

King said he was pleased with the welcome and stated, "We are happy to be here and hope we make good citizens. We intend to do just that."

Other speakers included Ed Lambert, division manager of marketing services for the Illinois Department of Commerce and Community Affairs and Ron Reinert, marketing manager for Illinois Bell Telephone Co.

J. E. Pinson, corporate secretary and director of management services for TRRA, explained during the tour that TRRA has been headquartered in St. Louis since 1889. It moved to Union Station in 1894 and remained there until 1974, when it moved into the Frisco Building in downtown St. Louis.

Central computerized switching operations continue in the TRRA building in the Madison Rail Yards and the dispatch office remains in Missouri, near the Chicago suburb of Elgin.

The Granite City office houses executives, billing, central office, main computer, engineering department and railroad police department, said Tyrone Pace of the Metro East Area Rail Gateway Enterprise (MARGE) partnership. Pace, of Edwardsville, explained that the MARGE project, designed to relocate the rail corridors through the St. Louis region, is generally stalled due to the current economy.

"We are concentrating on main line improvements at the present time, due to the lack of railroads in the area," King said.

One major project being undertaken in the new Granite City office is the engineering for a proposed $20 million signaling system which will move rail cars faster and safer through the TRRA system. It is noted that most of the interlockers, which transfer cars and are "about worn out."

What is termed "508 preference share funding," a low-interest government loan, is being sought for the $20-million project, which will upgrade track, switches and signals, Pinson explained.

Unemployment reform bills are approved

Moving quickly after a compromise had been reached, the Illinois House and Senate approved 107-1 and 51-0 Thursday.

State labor and business leaders agreed to a combination of revenue increases and benefit reductions. They had been deadlocked.

The plan totals $540 million in 1983-84, $600 million in 1984-85 and $800 million in 1985-86. Of the $1.94 billion total, additional revenue accounts for $1.16 billion and benefit cuts $780 million.

GC man finds modeling is a 'vagabond' life

By NANCY WEIL
of the Press-Record

Greg Terrell thought the idea that he should consider modeling was "the funniest thing" he had ever heard.

The suggestion was placed in his mind by a woman he met at the Mengelberry's grocery store. At the time, he was working as a juvenile street counselor at a drug rehabilitation center.

Sixty-seven months later, Terrell, 26, has adopted the idea and contacted the woman. He was headed for a life of glamour and intrigue as a model, right?

Wrong, according to Terrell, who is 26 and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Bill (JoAnn) Terrell, of Granite City. "There is very little that is glamorous about modeling," he said.

Illustrative of how unglamorous it was was his first modeling job. Terrell found himself in a "very, very hot storage shed" in Stockton, Ca., for the better part of the day.

Two years later, Terrell works at a studio in Chicago for the David-Lee Agency, and, while he is accustomed to the pitfalls of his job, there still are aspects of modeling that disillusion him.

Loyalty is a constant enemy. "The thing about our industry is that you make a living out of the vagabond lifestyle," he said. Being a vagabond means leaving friends and family behind and being constantly on the road.

While Terrell has formed friendships among his contemporaries in the industry and while his girlfriend, Jeaneen O'Connell, also is a model, loneliness still is a threat. He and another model formed a support group in Chicago to help each other deal with various problems.

At the time Terrell talked, at his parents' home home in Oaklawn Drive, Miss. O'Connell was in Japan on assignment. "The separation is about kill us," Terrell said.

And, while they both hope the separations will decrease, there is little to do now.

Over the last few years, Terrell said he has spent a great deal of time pondering the difference between loneliness and homesickness.

Homesickness, he said, is something first felt upon going away to college. It takes time and becoming active on campus but, eventually, it is over.

The transition from counseling to modeling took him to Chicago, but he said, he still considers San Francisco to be "functionally home." Most models really have no sense of "home" or where they live, he said.

Although with the Boston Studios Models at Mizzen he is enabled to qualify as a juvenile counselor in San Francisco, although he said the most important part of getting that job was the interview.

Before San Francisco, Terrell went to Quincy, Ill., where he worked with a CBS station.

What he terms "the white glove treatment" made him decide to leave journalism. "I'm too cause-oriented," he said. The post-Vietnam era had a profound effect on his thinking, but he did realize that "causes" did not affect any changes as a journalist.

Leaving journalism was inevitable at that point. He moved to San Francisco but, after not being able to find a job, he got a job at a broadcast station there.

Having "up and left" one job, he found he was "blacklisted already." Juvenile Counseling came next. Because the city is a white-collar town," Terrell found he was working more with other juvenile problems than drugs.

Many of those who use drugs in San Francisco earn about half six-figure incomes. The police there, he added, work "very hard to flush out the bad (mixes of) drugs," but otherwise high-income drug users are left alone.

Such a life is not exactly conducive to paying bills and eating properly, so some models work well, Terrell said. On the days he is not at a job, he can write. Having the option to choose which assignments he wants to take leaves him somewhat control of when he will model and when he will work on writing.

A successful writing career, he hopes, will come to him eventually.

He has had encounters

during the past three years,

his parents, he said, have remained "incredibly supportive."

So far as modeling is concerned, they have been "quietly supportive." While he did not always feel "real" about wanting to be a model, they are interested in his career and what he does, Terrell said.

The Terrell family is very close. Aside from Greg, who is the eldest child, the Terrells have two other children, Tam, 29, who is married to David Rhodes and lives in Nashville, Tenn., and Rob, 9.

TV commercials are another possibility, as are soap operas. Both appeal to Terrell, he said.

The important thing now, however, is for him to build up his "book," including tear-sheets of various advertisements in which he has appeared. So far, he has appeared in advertisements for department stores in Chicago including Marshall Field's and I. Magnin, he has been in "Mademoiselle" and "W" magazines, and recently was in town to model for Famous-Barr in St. Louis.

Although modeling has brought some complex changes to his life, it also benefits him. It was at a modeling job that he met Jeaneen, with whom he is obviously very much in love.

Since he has been with Jeaneen, he has "opened up" as a person, becoming more "sensitive and observant."

Part of that is due to his relationship with Jeaneen, who is "always going places, always being animated," he said.

Now, "I'm comfortable being me. I was a quiet person before. I feel much freer to be expressive," he said.

Eventually, Terrell has hoped to be less of a vagabond and more settled than at present. To New York City appears to him, he said. Upon the suggestion of his living in New York City, he crossed his fingers. It might be nice to live outside of the city and commute, he said.

Terrell has talked to people at the Eileen Ford Modeling Agency there, one of the most prestigious in the world.

For now, however, he is

part of the vagabond life-style and, although he holds "a very strong attachment" to San Francisco, Chicago and all its trappings will suffice. But then, Terrell gives the impression that success for him is not relative to where he is, but who he is. And, if anything can be said about the loneliness and the unpredictability, Terrell has a strong sense of who he is and exactly where his life will lead.

GC Steel wins top safety award

Granite City Steel is one of two winners of National Steel Corporation's annual President's Safety Award.

President James E.

Haas, president, announced

American Steel Corporation, located in Detroit, Mich., is the other winner in taking first place in the steel division. Granite City Steel demonstrated a 35 percent safety record improvement compared with its previous three-year average. American Steel improved 38 percent to lead the industry.

For achievements in improving safety performance in 1982, Haas will present each unit with a safety trophy and banner for display in the respective facilities. "We extend our personal congratulations to Granite City Steel and American Steel Corporation for their achievement, and salute the other divisions, all of which improved their safety records in 1982," Haas said.

"Our objective with this program is to create a climate where everyone should be concerned for their own safety and for the safety of their fellow workers. It is the philosophy of National Steel Corporation that accidents which cause personal injury or property damage are preventable and that it is both a moral obligation and sound business practice to prevent accidents," he added. "We hope that these awards will inspire each of our business units to improve its individual safety record. It is most encouraging to note that in the past year, all operating units improved their safety records."

He emphasized that under the safety award program, the various participating divisions and subsidiaries do not compete directly against each other. Instead, competition is within each unit itself, where the particular division or subsidiary is challenged to improve its own safety record. The unit in each

DAV members urged to write congressmen

Andrew Gitchoff, commander of Quad-City Chapter 53, Disabled American Veterans, asked all the members attending the Midwinter meeting of the chapter to contact their congressmen if they have not already done so, and ask him to support HB103. This legislation will provide matching funds to veterans service centers in every state. Governor James Thompson should be requested to release funds needed to operate the home he said.

He suggested that all members read the comments of Commander Edward Galian and of Norman B. Hartnett in the March issue of the DAV magazine. He also thanked Larry Lockhart, Don Moore and Jim Estes for their work in preparing and serving the corned beef and cabbage dinner.

Section Two: American Steel Corporation, Detroit, Mich.; National Pipe and Tube Company, Liberty, Texas; Bull Moose Tube Company, St. Louis; National Aluminum Corporation, Pittsburgh, Pa.; National Steel Products Company, Parsippany, N.J.; National Steel Products Company, Houston, Texas.

Boost for people and facilities

Its formula is complete for aid to hard-hit areas, but the $4.65 billion anti-recession law signed by President

Reagan yesterday may do a lot of good.

It will provide emergency food and shelter totaling

$125 million, public-service jobs aggregating $375

$million, $175 million in health care for children, mothers and migrant workers, and $150 million for reconstruction of schools, hospitals and low-income housing.

The law also provides for the eve of Congress' Easter vacation assured continuity for unemployment benefits in many states whose funds were nearly exhausted. Illinois coffers were empty on the day the House acted, which was only two days after Senate aproval.

Among the priority construction items are $3 million

for a 4,800-foot runway and taxiway plus a parking

apron extension at Bi-State Parks Airport, Cahokia.

The new runway is to be used by smaller airplanes,

leaving a 5,500-foot runway open to larger and faster planes. The work will add to the versatility and capacity of Parks as regional aviation hubs.

Also set aside are $6.3 million for military housing at Scott Air Force Base. Airport projects in Illinois, in addition to Parks, will include Rockford Airport ($1.3

30% cut in university support

Comment by Chancellor John Cribbet, University of Illinois. Chicago Urban campus—Illinois ranks last among the 50 states in growth of funding for higher education in the past decade, when enrollments in Illinois higher education rose faster than the national average.

Enrollment increases combined with a steady decline in the rate of state investment in constant dollars by 1982, the state was spending nearly 30 percent less from state and local sources to educate students than a decade earlier.

We entered 1982-83 with an $8.1 million deficit due to inadequate funding to cover unavoidable cost increases. This created the necessity to reduce our personnel base by 2.7 percent. The mandated reduction of an additional $7.1 million in mid-year presented unusually severe difficulties.

We deferred selected faculty increases for our highly productive faculty and staff members. We determined that 10 additional positions, beyond the 2.7 percent reduction in our personnel base, will have to be eliminated. We implemented a mid-year tuition increase.

The quality of the faculty ranks with that of the best million runway and taxiway installation), Greater Peoria Airport ($2.4 million runway extension and overlay) and Chicago's Midway Airport ($570,000 overlay of the east-west taxiway).

Mass transit and highway funding also is planned, along with investment in community development block grants for such purposes as sewer construction and day care centers.

Other funds will go to library construction, efforts to fight drug and alcohol abuse, extended jobless pay for railroad employees with less than ten years of service, Veterans Administration hospital repairs, flood control, state parks, national forests and Tennessee Valley Authority programs.

Although the home towns of influential lawmakers will be well represented in the list of improvements, $1.7 billion will go directly to communities hardest hit by American industry's post-Detente recession (cities and towns with double-digit unemployment).

As a compromise measure, the appropriation is not totally pleasing to anyone. But it may be a helpful step in easing extreme individual and family hardships while simultaneously providing long-needed public facilities.

Among the priority construction items are $3 million

for a 4,800-foot runway and taxiway plus a parking

apron extension at Bi-State Parks Airport, Cahokia.

The new runway is to be used by smaller airplanes,

leaving a 5,500-foot runway open to larger and faster

planes. The work will add to the versatility and capacity of Parks as regional aviation hubs.

We, and our students and their parents, cannot do it alone.

Illinois must signal its commitment to the future vitality of this state by reversing the decade-long decline in support for this university and the other educational institutions.

If we cannot match the resources now being made available by other states, everyone in this state will pay the price. The social and economic future of our state hinges on decisions before us today.

Court equality for blind, deaf

Judges must not be blind. But jurors may be blind, or deaf, without jeopardizing justice, Illinois state representatives believe.

By a vote of 81-29 March 23, they sent to the Senate legislation to remove the current ban on jury duty for those "not in possession of their natural faculties."

Organizations representing the blind and deaf supported the bill, the main witness for it was a blind circuit judge from Cook County.

Judges could still excuse from service persons who cannot "perceive and appreciate the evidence." Attorneys for either side in a case who did not want a blind or deaf juror could use a peremptory challenge.

Opponents of the measure argued that most blind and deaf persons called for jury duty would end up not being selected for a jury—and that the proposal would waste time and money for both the prospective jurors and the court system. Also cited was the cost of hiring sign language interpreters for deaf jurors.

We can see merit on both sides, but the present law is clearly wrong in linking lack of sight or hearing to impaired ability to reason. Such persons have contributed much to the development of the world, and those lacking one of the senses often hone their other senses to unusual sharpness.

Where afflicted persons can be effective in court processes, it would seem to be wise to permit and encourage their participation. An active citizenship role is an important element of a full life.

Predict significant aid from federal jobs bill

Governor James R. Thompson could receive more than $250 million in federal funds and several thousand jobs created this year under the Emergency Jobs Bill approved by Congress and signed by the President Ronald Reagan on Thursday.

Although these are preliminary estimates, it appears that Illinois could receive major portions of the money for a variety of projects under the bill, legislation aimed at putting people back to work as soon as possible," the governor said.

"Illinois, like several other major industrial states, has suffered for too long the effects of high unemployment," Illinois Congressional delegation worked hard to make sure that the state got its fair share under this bill and that the jobs have every opportunity to benefit under this program," he said.

Thompson had particular praise for U.S. Senators Charles H. Percy and Alan J. Dixon for their work on the $4.6 billion recession-relief bill. And he complimented House Minority Leader Robert Michel and Representative Sidney Yates for their efforts to assure passage of the measure.

Congressional estimates show that about 500,000 jobs could be created nationwide, but that figure is expected to be several weeks, until project and program decisions are made, the governor said.

Thompson added that under a $2 billion construction program included in the bill, Illinois' share of the funding could increase under the program.

Under the bill, Illinois could receive $254,816,264 in federal funds that will be distributed through state grant programs and other projects around the state. Among the major programs set to receive funds were: Community Development block grants, $48.4 million; interstate transfer funds for highways, $90.7 million; mass transit, $10 million; summer youth employment; $5.5 million; low income apartment rehabilitation, $5.9 million; and soil conservation programs, $5 million.

Gov. Thompson cautioned that until a formula is determined, how many states will receive funds under the plan is completed. Illinois and other states will have to rely on estimates to project federal funding levels. The formula

Jobless pay being taxed

Taxpayers who collected unemployment benefits and had other income during 1982 should beware of a change in the law that applies to 1982 tax returns, the Internal Revenue Service said this week.

A single taxpayer might owe income taxes on unemployment compensation if it single taxpayer's income was more than $20,000 or a married couple filing jointly had income greater than $30,000.

Instructions on how to report unemployment compensation are in the Form 1040 and Form 1040A tax package.

Because these changes were made in 1982, some taxpayers may have underpaid their tax and be subject to penalty on the underpayment, the IRS said. However, relief from the penalty will be granted if the underpayment is due to these changes in law.

For information, Quad-Cityans may request IRS Publication 905, "Tax Information on Unemployment Compensation," available by using the order blank in the tax package.

Urge voters on commerce commission change

To the Editor:

On Tuesday, April 12, we, the voters of the city of Granite City, will be asked to vote on an advisory referendum pertaining to the election of the Illinois Commerce Commission members. It is my feeling that if the voters truly understand what this referendum concerns, their decision will ultimately be to vote yes on April 12.

The referendum applies to the Illinois Commerce Commission which consists of five members who presently are appointed by the governor of Illinois. One of the duties of the Illinois Commerce Commission members is to oversee the utilities and their rates in the state. It is this board which votes on whether a specific utility can increase its rates.

Since this board has so much to say on what we, the voters of Illinois, pay for our utilities, I think it is important, as a homeowner and voter, that we stand on April 12 and let the governor know that we want a little bit more about who represents us. Vote yes for the advisory referendum.

As an alderman in the city of Granite City, but more importantly, as a homeowner and voter, I think it is important that we stand on April 12 and let the governor know that we want a little bit more about who represents us. Vote yes for the advisory referendum.

Reorganize police commands

By VALERIE EVENDEN
of the Press-Record

The reorganization of five officers in the Granite City Police Department has been announced today by Police Chief Ronald J. Veizer. The transfers of Lt. Col. Robert Astorino, Capt. Harry Mitchell, Capt. Gerald Pinkerton, Capt. James Lengyel and Sgt. David Ruebhausen to different divisions and duties follow the promotion of four officers announced in Thursday's Press-Record.

Lt. Col. Astorino, a graduate of the Federal Bureau of Investigation National Academy at Quantico, Va., headed the uniform and investigation division under the reorganization of top echelon officers.

Prior to the promotion to major general rank, effective April 1, Astorino has served as chief of detectives since Sept. 15, 1977. He joined the department in May 1962, was named a detective in 1973 and was promoted to sergeant in 1974 when he joined the patrol division.

He was promoted to lieutenant in May, 1977, and was raised to captain's rank in September of the same year. He has served as a member of the St. Louis Metropolitan Area Major Case Squad for more than 10 years.

Astorino holds bachelor and associate degrees from Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville and Belleville Area College. He has completed numerous law enforcement courses and specialized training seminars and holds many commendations.

Capt. Mitchell, a veteran of 29 years with the department, will assume the responsibility as chief of detectives on April 1, 1983. He joined the department Oct. 29, 1964, and was assigned to the patrol division. In 1964, he was changed to the parking meter patrol and in 1965 received assignment to the traffic unit.

He became a juvenile officer in 1966 and was promoted to sergeant the same year, returning to the patrol division in October, 1966. He attained the rank of lieutenant in 1974 and was named to captain's rank in July, 1977.

Capt. Mitchell, a U.S. Navy veteran, has received many commendations in his 29 years on the force. He was named to his position in the investigation and clearance of a double homicide in 1978 by the Madison County Sheriff's Office and commendation to the State Service for his handling of a case in 1976. His schooling in law enforcement work is extensive and diversified, ranging from narcotics to juvenile law.

Capt. Pinkerton, a 25-year veteran officer, will supervise the service division as his new department assignment. He began his career with the Granite City police force April 1, 1968, in the patrol division, and was transferred to the traffic division in 1966.

He attained the rank of sergeant in 1971 with the control of the service division. He was promoted to the rank of lieutenant on July 1, 1977. He has attended many police schools and seminars, including a 24-hour basic law enforcement course. Unannounced revenue inspections surprised some business owners Agents from the Illinois Department of Revenue coin-operated amusement devices and untaxed cigarettes and made two arrests during a series of unannounced inspections of businesses in Madison and St. Clair counties.

The inspections of more than 250 businesses Tuesday and Wednesday marked the beginning of intensified efforts by the department to crack down on suspected tax fraud in the area, according to Laurence Mulcrone, district director in charge of the Investigative Services Bureau of the Department of Revenue.

"It's great in and around East St. Louis is second only to Chicago in the number of businesses in Illinois," he said. "Any time there is such a high concentration of businesses, there is a greater possibility of tax fraud always exists. We felt it was time to take a closer look at the businesses there."

Investigative Revenue agents, assisted by state police, tax collectors and agents from the Department of Law Enforcement's Criminal Investigations Division, inspected businesses in 16 communities, including East St. Louis, Granite City, Madison, Venice, Eagle Park Acres, Washington Park, Brooklyn, Collinsville, Alton, East Alton, Wood River, Cottage Hills, Alton, Godfrey, Bethalto, Belvidere and Godfrey.

Some businesses inspected were chosen randomly. Others were selected because of previous tax problems or because of referrals from the DCR.

Revenue agents seized about 250 packages of cigarettes which did not bear a tax stamp and arrested the owner of an East St. Louis liquor store for possession of 214 packages.

Agents also arrested the owner of an adult bookstore for operating a business without registering for tax purposes plus 10 percent, as a penalty to redeem them.

Revenue agents also warned business owners with delinquent tax accounts that property seizure actions may be initiated through collection efforts and proceedings for suspected tax fraud sought through the attorney general.

Periodic return visits are planned by the investigators, Mulcrone said.

Some '83 auto license plates expire Thursday

Illinois Secretary of State Jim Edgar is reminding motorists that midnight Thursday, March 31, is the deadline for car owners with license plate registrations expiring in March to display their new plates in the upper right corner of their rear license plates. "Approximately $47,000 renewal applications have been mailed to registered owners who currently are displaying the orange 1982 stickers that expire in March," Edgar said.

Applications made by mail should be sent to the secretary's office no later than Tuesday, March 15, to ensure delivery by the deadline.

Stickers can be purchased at the counter at the Secretary of State facility in Springfield or one of 1,400 financial institutions, including 617 banks, 38 savings and loan associations, credit unions and about 600 currency exchanges.

Effective Friday, April 1, anyone driving a car with an expired orange, March, 1983, sticker will be subject to a fine for improper registration.

Questions concerning the issuance of permits for yard sales directed by aldermen at last week's meeting of the Venice City Council.

First Ward Alderman John Fleck said that matter of yard sale permits to the council's attention, noting "that businesses are opening up and yard sales are being held and few people have applied for licenses or permits."

The alderman reported seeing a three-day yard sale going on in town and found out the person had never bought a city permit. Venice Mayor Tyrone Price said the alderman could be sent to an address where a garage or yard sale is being held to check on whether a $3 permit has been issued to the person.

Yard sale permits, required by city ordinance in June, 1981, and business licenses must be obtained, the mayor stressed. Both are available at the office of City Controller Roseann Hall in the Venice City Hall.

Decatur and Miller in 4th Ward race

Alderman Warren L. Decatur, a two-term aldermanic veteran, will face newcomer Phillip K. Miller in the April 12 election.

Both men have connections to the Granite City Wastewater Treatment Plant which has been the center of controversy for almost two years. Decatur, past plant aldermanic chairman, has worked to prevent the plant's overfertilization. Miller is the brother of a lead operator foreman at the facility.

Mayor Paul Schuler chose not to reappointment Decatur as chairman of the plant committee last year instead selecting third Ward Alderman Paul Fisk to oversee the operations.

Schuler, who ran for City Gate Place, ran against Schuler unsuccessfully in 1981. The alderman is a retired mechanical engineer-estimator for contractors and highway projects. He is a past president of the Illinois Chapter of the National Electrical Contractors Association.

"My experience as an engineer, together with my business experience, enabled me to make recommendations savings thousands of taxpayers' dollars," Decatur said.

Decatur used as an example not to hire a special traffic engineer to plan a school crossing signal at St. Margaret Mary School. The move save the city about $5,000, he said.

WARREN DECATUR

PHILLIP MILLER

If re-elected, the incumbent said he would "seek and implement" ways to operate the city as a business. "I feel the taxpayers should get the best value for each dollar paid to the city."

Another goal he plans to work toward is the completion of the North Granite and Braircliff drainage projects.

Decatur, 56, chairs the city buildings committee and member of the finance and street light committees. He is a former Fire and Police Board commissioner.

He is past president of the Tri-City YMCA, a member of the Granite City Rotary Club and former solicitation chairman of the Granite City High School South soccer lighting project.

As a Masonic member of the Masonic order, he is a member of the York and Scottish Rite Bodies and the Alain Shrine Temple.

Decatur received a bachelors degree in engineering from the Illinois Institute of Technology and attended electrical courses at St. Louis University.

He is a member of First United Presbyterian Church of Granite City. He and his, Lorraine, have a son, William, and daughter, Mrs. Wendy Kambara.

Miller, 42, of 3245 Fehling Road, is a long-time resident of the city. He has not held public office previously.

He seeking a position as alderman now to give Fourth Ward residents an effective voice at Granite City Council meetings. "We are all concerned about the future of Granite City — economically, with the loss of industry and jobs — physically, with flooding, zoning, incomplete sidewalks and street problems."

Miller is campaigning on a promise to work "diligently with the city council to bring more industry to the community." He also said he will work on the physical problems that have plagued our Fourth Ward for so many years.

He cited water problems and the general appearance of the area.

In his campaign literature, he cites the employment of his brother, Gary Miller, at the city's Wastewater Treatment Plant and his brother-in-law's position as administrative supervisor in the Granite City Township Assessor's Office.

The younger is employed in the Tool Room Department at Carter Carburetor and is a member of United Auto Workers Local 819. He also holds membership in the Knights of Columbus.

He is of the Baptist faith.

Survey Madison residents on desire for alarm system

The Madison Concerned Citizens are currently conducting a survey of 520 homes to try and determine the citizens' views on the proposed burglar alarm system.

At the group's regular monthly meeting, Thomas George, chairman of the MCC Advisory Committee, passed out postcards, pre-printed and stamped.

George emphasized that these were to be passed out to individuals and not to everybody in the various blocks so the survey would be truly representative.

George further pointed out that no signature is required and persons can pass out the cards should not ask the people to mark them there and give them back, but mark them privately and mail them back.

Nagle may involve some courtroom fireworks.

Predictions are that the trial may last four weeks, with Nagle seeking to find a sufficient number who are impartial. Massa asked that the trial be moved from this area due to pre-trial publicity, but the judge disagreed.

Handling the prosecution will be

Terence Adelman, an attorney, and Ronald Kane, a lawyer with the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission.

Skinner will be represented by Attorney Stephen Rice. Handling Massa's defense will be Barry Short, a former U.S. attorney, and famed Boston attorney P. Lee Bailey. They may seek to picture Brimberry as responsible for any and all procedural or legal violations.

Now in custody at Chesterfield, Mo., after staying in Arthur for most of the year, and then being arrested and taken to Belleville, Ill., and Springfield, Mo. — Brimberry is not expected to attend the Massa-Skinner trial.

Massa potentially could face 145 years in prison, Brimberry 75 years and Skinner 50 years.

Annis maintains that he was invited to the township building to have lunch with the senior citizens and talk to them about the apartment. When asked what he was told by Bernadine Hagnauer, a township employee, that solicitation inside the building is not allowed. She asked him to leave the building, he said. Anniis said that three senior citizens apologized to him "for the woman's (Mrs. Hagnauer) homes," he said.

Sewer breaks, employee wages are question marks in budget

By GEORGEANN MCGEE
of the Press-Record

Granite City budget talks are going smoothly, but figures to finance parts of the total budget may prove a rougher job.

The city's 1983-84 budget year begins May 1, and the city manager and budget committee stretched into late summer. Sixth Ward Alderman Walter Milton, finance chairman, has set April 19 as his target date to present a preliminary budget to the council.

Some of the problems the budget authors and the council face are:

The merits of funding emergency temporary repairs to correct multiplying sewer breaks versus supporting a bond issue or alternate means of funding more lasting repairs which carry a ballpark figure of $50,000.

City employee wages are enough when setting sewer user rates, while judging what Wastewater Treatment Plant equipment repairs and funding accounts will wait another year.

Figuring out if the city can support its full ambulance service in light of a one percent reduction in calls.

Determining if any money will be available to give raises to city employees whose wages were frozen last year.

City Comptroller Joseph McMillan and the aldermanic finance committee wrapped up talks with city department heads on their various budgets earlier this week. The thrust of the talks was to keep expenses down to the current $11.2 million budget, according to Milton.

Both he and McMillan feel the department heads have been faithful to that goal.

The tentative budgets do not include employee raises and that is, apparently responsible for keeping most of the budget fairly static, McMillan told the finance committee Tuesday. The comptroller estimates rising prices will account for about a three percent increase in services and supplies.

Only after the comptroller has projected the coming fiscal year's total expenses and revenues will the affect of employee raises be weighed.

Budget planners received grim news last week when they learned the city has been turned down in its application for disaster aid to repair sewer breaks.

The projected half-million dollars in needed repairs far exceed last year's $67,000 budget for maintenance of sewer lines.

Mayor Paul Schuler said State Representative Sam Wolf (D-Granite City) will work to reverse the federal decision.

The city engineer points to flooding-induced erosion of groundlines as a cause of collapsing sewer lines here.

Despite the already high cost estimates, Mayor Schuler said the "very serious" situation will be taken care of after spring rains.

The finance committee is expected to bring in a recommendation on how to fund repairs for the breaks with the city engineer and the department heads.

The finance committee awaits word from the Wastewater Treatment Plant committee on what impact, if any, the two recent independent engineering reports on staffing and operations increases will have on the plant's budget.

Already expected to go forward in the current budget due to a shortage of funds is $175,000 in bond reserves required by ordinance, $85,000 in capital improvements and $100,000 intended as a partial payment for money borrowed from the city's general fund.

Plant Superintendent Terrence McMillan is requesting for the 1983-84 year additional capital improvements his considers emergency improvements, including two new trucks to replace older vehicles used to haul sludge.

McMillan also is requesting $14,000 to fund bond reserves, citing that

Gushleff, Strange view issues differently

By PAT HAY LUTZ
The Press-Record

After the April 1 election, Madison politics may never be the same, Alderman William Gushleff told a crowd of 50 persons during a short campaign speech on Monday. Referring to the opponent, Ward 1 Paul Ashford, Bob Grieve and he face in the upcoming aldermanic election, Gushleff said, "This could be a major turning point in Madison politics. They have to take over, but they have no record. We have a record that we can be proud of."

Gushleff spoke for Ashford and Grieve when he outlined the progress that he feels has been made by the present council. "The downtown mini-mail has brought revenue and jobs into the city," he said. "We have established a burglar alarms system which pays for by subscribers. We have the best streets in the metropolitan area and our allies are paved," he added. Gushleff directly attacked Mick Strange, his opponent in the Third Ward race, saying that Strange's one percent tax system is paid for by subscribers, not with tax dollars. If the cable TV committee determines that cable is right for our area, that too will be paid for by subscribers, not with tax dollars as he would have you believe."

"My opponent would also have you believe that we are going to tax the trash pickup program. We have not even voted on how to vote with every tax the trash pickup."

Gushleff continued to lash out against Strange by saying that Strange would not adequately represent his constituents. Strange chooses to sit on a porch and write letters filled with figures that he pulls out of his head," Gushleff charged. "If you try to call him, you have to talk to an answering service. That is not the message you are trying to get across. Try doing business with an answering service — he never returned my calls," Gushleff added.

Assuming a charge by Strange that the five percent utility tax passed by the council is unfair, Gushleff stated that the tax was the only financial alternative. "We had two choices," he said. "We could borrow money or lay off workers, or add the tax to utilities. Since the first choice was out of the question, I feel that we made the fairest choice."

Gushleff challenged the tactics of Strange and other opposition to the party by asking for an outline of tangible suggestions from them. "All they have done is complain," Gushleff charged. "We know what they are against, but what are they for?"

In his conclusion, Gushleff admonished Strange for attacking Mayor Mike Sasyk. "If he has a complaint against me and my performance, then he should deal with me and not with a third party," Gushleff stated.

"He has not offered any sound basis for argumentation against me. We have to keep this city running on sound economic principles and not with a few cosmetics. In that regard, I have a record that I am proud of."

Aldermanic candidates Paul Ashford (Ward One) and Bob Grieve (Ward Two) agreed to meet at the library presentation and requested the support of Madison voters on April 12.

Mayor Mike Sasyk, who was present at the meeting, told the audience that the candidates did not want to wait until the Firemen's Hall on the night of April 11.

While Gushleff questioned the tactics and platform of his opponent, Strange was accusing Gushleff and the present council of practicing taxation without representation.

In a symbolic gesture before his speech to the Concerned Citizens of Madison, Gushleff threw a hundred tea bags representing the protest behind the Boston Tea Party. "These tea bags represent what our forefathers did to protest taxation without representation after the passage of the Townsend Act," Strange said. "That is exactly what we have in Madison today."

Strange challenged the council to propose a one percent utility tax to pay for city services, saying that the maximum tax was unnecessary and unfair. "The reason that the tax was to pay for the boondoggle of the original TV project," Strange charged. "They got all of this equipment and found out that it was illegal. Now they have to pay for it somehow."

"A study has been done which proves that the tax could have been levied for three percent, but they are overtaxing us with the maximum tax," Strange said.

Strange also attacked Gushleff's record, citing Gushleff's introduction of the utility tax into the city. "No alderman has to introduce a bill that he is against," Strange explained. "Gushleff introduced the utility tax and served on the committee which endorsed it."

Calling Gushleff a "yes-man," Strange charged that Gushleff has voted against only one project in his six years on the council. "He voted 'no' only once in six years," Strange contends. "He has voted 'yes' on the best streets in the metropolitan area and our allies are paved," he added.

Gushleff directly attacked Mick Strange, his opponent in the Third Ward race, saying that Strange's one percent tax system is paid for by subscribers, not with tax dollars. If the cable TV committee determines that cable is right for our area, that too will be paid for by subscribers, not with tax dollars as he would have you believe."

"A study has been done which proves that the tax could have been levied for three percent, but they are overtaxing us with the maximum tax," Strange said.

Strange also would vote to eliminate the practice of providing aldermen with automatic checks for expenses and providing medical insurance to those who are covered by insurance through other sources.

Strange concluded his presentation by stating, "We are not perfect, but we are represented by the city council. It's up to you to how to vote — no one knows who you vote for once you get into that ballot booth."

"I am against a well-organized, well-financed black aldermanic candidate," Strange said. "I'd appreciate your word-of-mouth support."

Don Garrett, the unopposed black aldermanic candidate for the new Concerned Citizens, explained to the all-white crowd that his new constituency would confront him with a new perspective in his job. "I serve as the alderman for the First Ward," Garrett said. "People don't stand up and challenge the issues, then they deserve what they get," he stated. "That's what election day is all about."

Both Garrett and Strange promised that, if elected, they would be willing to provide their constituents with copies of their expenses.

"I served an all-black community and am constantly looking out for the needs of the blacks. This will be a first for me and I hope they are disgusted."

Strange also indicated that he would lower the maximum utility rates, put an end to closed meetings, and establish a job pool, whereby names of qualified individuals would be considered in the event of a job opening in the city. Strange hopes that the job pool will "end the practice of giving jobs only to those who follow the line," Garrett said.

Garrett also would vote to eliminate the practice of providing aldermen with automatic checks for expenses and providing medical insurance to those who are covered by insurance through other sources.
